

2018 Texas Symposium on Wireless and Microwave Circuits and Systems (WMCS)

Call for Student Posters

Deadline for Abstracts: Monday, March 26, 2018 (7:00 p.m.)

The 2018 Texas Symposium on Wireless and Microwave Circuits and Systems includes a Student Poster Session for both graduate and undergraduate students. The poster session will allow the student presenters to present their posters and interact with the symposium attendees, including other students, faculty, and industry representatives. Awards will be given for the best poster presentations.

It is not necessary for students to have an oral presentation at the symposium in order to have a poster presentation. However, students who have an oral presentation at the symposium are also invited to have a poster presentation on the same topic if they wish, which will allow them to interact with the attendees more fully on their topic and to participate in the poster competition.

Student poster presenters are asked to submit a one-page abstract, which will be published in the conference booklet but will not be published in the conference proceedings on IEEE Xplore, allowing subsequent submission of this material to future conferences. Please use the template provided on this website for preparing the abstract, and email the completed abstract (as a Word document) to Prof. David R. Jackson at djackson@uh.edu by the deadline of 7:00 p.m. on Monday, March 26, 2018.

Posters may be in either landscape or portrait format and do not have to follow a particular template. Easels and foam boards measuring 40 inches × 60 inches will be provided, along with tacks for fastening the posters to the foam boards. Please make sure that your poster will fit on the foam board. Students should bring their posters with them to the symposium and have their posters fastened to the foam boards and placed on the easels in the poster room in time for the start of the poster session.

Prizes will be awarded for the three best student posters, so students are encouraged to do their best in the preparation of their posters and in their discussions with the attendees/judges!