The 2017 IEEE MTT Texas Symposium on Wireless & Microwave Circuits & Systems

Baylor University, Waco, Texas March 30-31, 2017

The Texas Symposium on Wireless and Microwave Circuits and Systems conference committee invites paper submissions for the 2017 conference, to be held on the beautiful campus of Baylor University in Waco, Texas, on March 30-31, 2017.

Authors from the industry and academia are invited to submit papers of their original and previously unpublished work. Paper submissions in all areas of wireless and microwave circuits and systems are welcome. Topics of interest include:

- RF and microwave circuits and systems
- Devices, modeling, testing and measurement techniques
- 5G and millimeter-wave wireless technologies
- Spectrum management and coexistence
- Wireless technologies for biomedical applications
- Antennas, propagation, and electromagnetics
- Microwave applied metrology
- Wireless power transfer
- Electromagnetic materials and modeling
- Wireless or optical communications
- Photonics
- Radar and sensing
- Internet of Things
- Emerging wireless technologies

Published papers will be archived with the IEEE Xplore®, and a student-best-paper-award will be awarded to offset registration and travel costs.

Dates:
